

(L) Is This Problem Intelligible? (1/3) [10 Points]

Hawu¹ (with around 110,000 speakers in 5 dialects) and Dhao² (with around 5000 speakers) are spoken on three islands in the southernmost province of Indonesia. Similarities between the vocabularies of Hawu and Dhao have led some writers to conclude that Dhao should be classified as another dialect of Hawu. For example, here are some related words in Hawu and Dhao (with one cell intentionally left blank):

Hawu	Dhao	English
hupa	subha	swear an oath
puru	puru	descend
d'ue	dua	two
b'èhi	bèsi	iron, steel
d'ida	dedha	above
pedutu		follow
ana telora	ana talora	middle child
bèj'i	bhèj'i	sleep
pepuru	papuru	lower (something)
do	dhu	relativizer "which"

Below on the left are twelve sentences, six in Hawu and six in Dhao. The Hawu and Dhao sentences are mixed together. On the right are their English translations in an arbitrary order. Each English translation corresponds to one sentence in Hawu and one sentence in Dhao.

¹ Until conversions in the 1970s, most Hawu people maintained their traditional religion and ways of life. The Hawu people remember genealogies spanning hundreds of years that preserve Hawu history and structure Hawu society.

² The Dhao people recount that their island was first settled by people from the island of Hawu. The Hawu also tell a version of this history. Traditionally, Dhao women are weavers, while Dhao men are gold- and silver-smiths.
